

THE PRACTICE

The practice was formed in 2007 by the amalgamation of two accomplished firms, Andrews Downie and Partners and Knight Phillips Architects. Both practices remain well known for their award winning work in all areas of residential development, educational, medical and commercial schemes, and theatre and leisure projects.

The new practice's approach to design is understandably contextual, with so much work being in conservation areas and to listed buildings. Within this framework contemporary edge is often given where appropriate. As well as working in London and the South East projects have been carried out literally from Land's End to John O'Groats. The practice has also carried out a number of projects in France.

The partners are Stanley Haines, Michael Phillips and Maha Phillips. Former partners of both constituent firms, Donald Downie, Bernard Knight and Charles Dorin, now act as consultants.
