Combining old and new to transform the house

The refurbishment and extension of this Hillgate Village terraced house demonstrate how old and new can combine successfully.

The lower ground floor with its almost minimalist interior and small paved garden is but a few steps from a ground floor living area with retained original cornices and panel doors and a

We transformed the former water tank space at the back of the 'butterfly' roof in to a tiny but effective fitted study area.

The development is located in Kensington & Chelsea, London.
