

Parliamentary Review Gala

Senior partners Stanley Haines and Maha Phillips recently attended the 2019 Parliamentary Review Gala at the Palace of Westminster. The evening included speeches by Sir Geoff Hurst, Lord Blunkett and Julia Hartley-Brewer.

Haines Phillips Architects contributed to the 2019 Parliamentary Review publication as a best practice representative in the field of Construction and Engineering. In the words of the Editor of the Review, the main aim of the articles, and of the publication as a whole, is to demonstrate how organisations in the industry such as Haines Phillips Architects have become outstanding leaders in their field and to share best practice as a template for reform.

Our article, written by senior partner Stanley Haines, gives some insights into our firm's approach and experience, how we have responded to challenges within the industry, as well as our perspective on current issues and best practice within our practice and the architectural sector as whole. The article can be viewed here (on pages 26-28 of the document).

The Parliamentary Review is an independent publication that reviews the latest events in Parliament from a non-partisan perspective with the goal of raising standards.
